

THE EAGLES OF PENNAN – BY
TACITUS COTTON &
ALAN DUNCAN

the Eagles of Penman

At one period, there were a pair of eagles that came to nest and rear their young on the rocks Penman every year. And according to locals, when the Earl of Aberdeen bought the land from the Bairds the eagles disappeared. In truth of a prophecy by Thomas the Rhymer that there should be an eagle in the crags of Penman while there's a Baird in Auchmeddon.

What appears incredible is that when Lord Haddow married miss Christian Baird the eagles returned to the rocks, and stayed until the estate passed into the hands of William Gordon when they again fled, and have never been seen since.

Kaitas Cotton
A IAN Dunlan.

